Most of the following is from Wikipedia Commons.

George Thornton (23 December 1819 - 23 November 1901) was an Australian merchant and politician, serving as a Sydney Municipal Council Alderman, Mayor of Sydney and member of the New South Wales Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council. Thornton was born in Sydney, the son of Samuel Thornton (son of another Samuel, a woollen manufacturer of Barnsley, Yorkshire) and Sarah (n e Madden). Sarah was transported to Australia as a punishment for larceny; Samuel followed, arriving in Sydney in 1814 as a free settler, and was granted land by the colonial government.

George Thornton was educated at the Australian College on Jamieson Street, Sydney; he went into work as a custom-house and ship agent, later becoming an import merchant. Having been a magistrate in Sydney for many years, Thornton served also as a director of various financial institutions such as the City Bank of Sydney. He was elected to the Sydney Municipal Council in November 1847, and served as mayor in 1853 and 1857. Thornton was elected as a member for Sydney City from 1858 to 1859. In May 1861 he was appointed to the Legislative Council when Governor Young agreed to flood the council in support of John Robertson's land bills, but this was frustrated when the President of the Council, Sir William Burton refused to swear in the new members and resigned with others forcing the proroguement (suspension) of the Council. He represented Goldfields West in 1867 and 1868. In 1877 he was appointed for life to the Council. George Thornton was a commissioner of the 1879 Sydney International Exhibition and was a judge for Class 313 Musical Instruments. He also won a bronze medal in that class and was awarded a large silver medal for his services.

Thornton was the foundation President of the Sydney Rowing Club and was instrumental in the club's formation and growth from 1870 until his death. He served as President of the New South Wales Rowing Association from 1879 till his death. Thornton died of dysentery in 1901 at Parramatta, survived by his wife, Mary Ann (daughter of John Solomon, of Sydney) and daughter Frances; he was predeceased by a son and a daughter.

This recognition fob was for services rendered by P. Stratton for the rescue of crew and passengers from the American four-masted schooner, Alpena, at Stockton Beach at Newcastle.

In The Daily Telegraph on Friday 1 October 1909, page 8 it was reported.

THE SCHOONER ALPENA

BRAVERY TO BE RECOGNISED

NEWCASTLE, Thursday. - A public meeting was held last night for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken to recognise the heroic conduct of the crew of the lifeboat Victoria, in rescuing all hands from the schooner Alpena on Monday, last. The Mayor (Ald, J. C. Reid) presided.

The following resolutions were carried: -

1. That in the opinion of this meeting the heroic conduct of the lifeboat crew, and also of the master and crew of the pilot steamer Ajax, in going to the assistance in the height of the gale of those on board the schooner Alpena, when in great danger, off the port of Newcastle, on last Monday morning, and rescuing all hands, including a lady (the captain's wife) is worthy of all commendation, and sympathetically appeals to all classes of the community.

2. That all present form themselves into a committee (with power to add to their number) for the purpose of practically carrying out the previous resolution.

3. That subscription lists be opened for the purpose of obtaining funds for this worthy object.

The town clerk (Mr. Scott Holland) was appointed treasurer. A collection taken up at the meeting realised a substantial sum.

With research.

RSRHS: Case number 1940/09 - case notes state - Eric John Edward Fleming, 3rd Officer, S.S. Mangola, c/- Burns Philp & Co. Ltd., Bridge Street, Sydney. At about 8p.m. on the 30th September, 1939, at Port Darwin, the chief wireless operator of the R.A.F.A. steamer "Kurumba", a man named Oswald, fell overboard from the Mangola which was lying at the wharf. Fleming dived overboard and swam to Oswald, who had been carried some 400 yards from the ship due to the strong current prevailing at the time. They were picked up by a shore launch. These waters are badly infested with sharks and alligators (sic actually saltwater crocodiles).

In the Townsville Daily Bulletin, Friday 13 October 1939, Darwin Notes, page 12 there was a brief report of the incident as follows, 'A member of the crew of one of the boats in port had a narrow escape from drowning when he fell overboard on Monday night. Another of the crew jumped in to save him, but the seven-knot tide swept them well out into the harbour before the Qantas Empire Co.'s launch was able to meet and to rescue them.'
